Wool Embroidery and Serge — There You Have the Favorite Combination in the

New Fall Dresses

At $19.75

Straight lines prevail, long coat effects with kilt skirts, and finished with belt; novelty basque styles with skirts trimmed with three rows of wide black braid; finished with broadcloth collar; serge and taffeta combinations with brightening touches of Russian yarn embroidery, and deep collar.

There are other styles in serge, also some fetching models in navy blue satin; finished with white satin collar and ornamented with worsted yarn embroidery.

Navy blue and black are the chief favorites for fall.

COIN SHOWER STARTS DARKY BATTLE ROYAL

Newsboys Mix on Avenue as Stranger Throws Quarters.

"I sure ain't skeered o' yo," said one little barefooted, faint-hearted yellow ducky, about 9 years old, giving ground.

"I ain't skeered o' yo, neither," answered a second little grizzle and yellow colored "lad" of 10, slipping up a step.

Both rolled their eyes at each other for ten more minutes and repeated their declarations. They almost rubbed noses. Then, had seen-sawed all over the corner of Pennsylvania avenue and Thirteenth street.

"Gitt off de corner, or I'll biff yo'se it's mine."

"Taint yo'se, belongs to de government," retorted the shoeless "newbie." And they coaxed each other to start "fightin'."

By this time 250 fight fans had gathered, forming an arena and blocking the entire street and entrance into the store.

"Gitt to it, Gans," yelled a sporty-looking fellow. "I'll buy all your papers if you knock him out, and he flipped out a quarter. Both niggers dived after the coin and came up fighting. They swung and ducked, rushed and circled, clinched and bit, and the sidewalk, each man-aging to get one hit and a couple of kicks.

Then several more coins rang out on the concrete, converting the match into a battle royal of the darkies present. A well-dressed tudy elbowed into the crowd and talked Sunday school, but the lure of money was too strong and another quarter for the next blow sent her away and the darkies fighting again.

Each had grabbed up about half a dollar and were willing to stop, claiming the cops would stop the fight.

"I'll pay the fine," yelled the sport and egged the fellows on.

"You ain't got a five dollar bill on yo," yelled the big boy. But the en-voiced disher out another quarter each and the fight continued one more round.

Another hundred men swelled the crowd and started yelling for action, but an older darky, one of the corner men for smaller fighter, spied a cop rambling over and gave the alarm.

The corner wasn't worth the gaff, but the little fellows delayed long enough to snatch several nickels and dimes and beat it down the avenue, leaving their papers to the white "newbie" who holds down the corner. They made about $2 each. The policeman was too late for the fun.

Takes Valuables from Clothes.

Sneak thieves entered an open window the second story of the home of W. E. Harmon, 617 Georgia avenue north-ward, late Sunday night and stole everything of the occupant of the house.

Among the things taken were a number of car tickets and a gasoline order.

Richard Harmon, a civil war veteran, of Port Fairfield, Md., has three chairs that were made in 1815 in New Brunswick. The chairs are made of pine, which is nearly three inches thick on the seats, and are well preserved.

HYATTSVILLE HOLDS ATHLETIC CARNIVAL

Proceeds for Guard Relief and Firemen's Association.

Hyattsville was entertained yesterday by the town fire department and the Ladies' Auxiliary of Company F, First Maryland Infantry. These two organizations co-operatively gave Hyattsville a perfect celebration for the joint benefit of the Guardmen on the border and the firemen's relief association. Races in the morning and speaking in the afternoon left no idle minutes.

The speakers of the day were Sydney E. Mudd, Representative of the Fifth Maryland Congressional district in Congress, and now candidate for re-election, and his Democratic opponent, Jackson H. Ralston. Mr. Ralston, who spoke first, discussed "Peace and the Relation of the Present Administration to Peace." He cited the case of the Lusitania as a remarkable example of restraint on the part of the nation and the administration.

Mr. Mudd spoke on the "Blessings of national and industrial peace and patriotism." Mr. Mudd said: "I do not believe that this country will ever, under either a Republican or a Democratic administration, seek war for aggrandizement, but that it will ever fight if the national peace or honor is threatened. Just as our young men so nobly responded to the call when Mexico threatened, so will they ever do."

Fire Chief Edward Keegan was master of ceremonies. The committee on arrangements was: John M. Adams, Edward Devlin, Stephen J. Kelley, John Painter, R. A. King, Harry Degges, and Henry Deckleman.

Mrs. Mills O'Keefe was chairman of the ladies' auxiliary committee. She was assisted on the general arrangements committee by: Mrs. M. C. Robinson, Miss S. E. Quisenberry, M. Spalding, Mrs. M. Halloran, Mrs. O. A. Greager, and Miss A. Reynolds.

The National Training School Band played throughout the day.

anie de Cous Stephano, the collector's daughter.

BANDITS KILL LAWYER IN NEW YORK PARK

Special to The Washington Herald.

New York, Sept. 4.—Every branch of the police department was put into operation today in the hunt for the murderers of Montclair, N. J., who was shot

when on an automobile ride in Van Cortland Park.

In high excitement, Miss Mary McNiff,

his companion, who is 23 years old, told how two men jumped from behind bushes

in the golf links road near Moshulu avenue, leveled a revolver at the lawyer and demanded money.

Instead of complying with their demand, she said, Mr. Dilworth jumped from the automobile to grapple with the men. The robbers, she added, ran into some shrubbery which forms a natural protect in the park for the robber and opened fire. A bullet struck him in the chin and another entered his breast on the left side.

WHITE HOUSE OFFICES NOW AT ASBURY PARK

The White House offices are now located at Asbury Park, N. J., about six miles from the President's summer home, in the Asbury Park Trust Company's building, which has just been completed. The entire fifth floor and portions of the fourth floor have been fitted up by the government. One of the rooms is furnished for the President.

It is from here chiefly that the Democratic campaign will be directed. The building is a modest affair of brown-stone the same as will be found on the corners in hundreds of small towns in America.

REVOLT BREAKS OUT ON SUMATRA ISLAND

(By the International News Service.)

London, Sept. 4.—An Amsterdam dispatch to the Central News says an insurrection has broken out in the Jambi district of Sumatra Island.

Three Dutch soldiers have been wounded, and fifteen rebels killed and many injured, the report says.

Serious developments are looked for.

E. W. Bailey, of Weston, Kans., recently celebrated his 51st anniversary as president of a bank there, and it is believed that in point of service he is the oldest bank president in the nation.

CENTRAL LABOR UNION HOLDS ANNUAL OUTING

10,000 Gather at Chesapeake Beach for Day.

Members of the Central Labor Union and their friends, numbering 10,000, were at Chesapeake Beach yesterday, celebrating their annual Labor Day outing. The program consisted of dancing and athletic events.

The crowd began to arrive about noon, and the official program began at 2:30 o'clock. There were eleven athletic events, in charge of Dan Hossett. They included all kinds of races and other "stunts." A ball-throwing contest and a special bowling contest for women were among the features.

Prizes donated by local merchants were given to the winners. Hundreds of those present took advantage of the bathing and other amusements the beach offers. The program was arranged and staged by Mrs. Mary Ganzhorn.

N. A. James was chairman of the general committee on arrangements. The program of events lasted until after 10 o'clock, and nearly everybody remained at the beach for the entire evening, the last train for the city leaving at 11 o'clock.

STRAY SHOT HITS BOYS NEAR EASTERN BRANCH

The first two victims of the careless handling of fire arms by gunners in the Eastern Branch marshes were reported yesterday. Edward Bowles, 12 years old, 2219 Prout street southeast, and William Fletcher, 13 years old, 613 Orleans street northeast, were playing in the marsh at the foot of Naylor road, Anacostia and were struck by small shot fired by unidentified gunners in the Anacostia River.

Neither of the lads were seriously in-jured. They went to their homes. The force of the shot that struck the boys was well spent and did not penetrate deeply in their skin.

KERENS, FORMER ENVOY TO AUSTRIA, SUCCUMBS

Special to The Washington Herald. Philadelphia, Sept. 4.—Richard Kerens, former Ambassador to Austria, died early today at Merion, a suburb. Mr. Kerens, whose home was in St. Louis, was for more than a quarter of a century one of the Republican leaders of Missouri. Former President Taft appointed him Ambassador to Austria-Hungary. He was a pioneer in the field of trans-continental railway traffic when wagons and stage coaches were eliminated. In six big railroads he had extensive inter-ests, and also was connected with mining industries in Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico.

MT. RAINIER CARNIVAL OPENS FOR TWO WEEKS

Elaborate Parade and Speeches Fea-ture First Day.

Mount Rainier's two weeks' carnival was opened Labor Day with a parade through the streets of the town. Mayor Weber and town officers led the parade on horseback. National Hiv. No. 1, of the Washington Maccabees, followed an initiation team in full regalia, entered a number of their children. The "Mac-cabees Twins" were there, too. Sections were furnished by the Odd Fellows, the Women's Civic League, the Third Ward Citizens and the fire department. The fire department's contribution was in the nature of a tableau showing the growth of the department during the four years of its existence, from a bucket brigade to a well-equipped company, with two motor fire engines.

At the conclusion of the parade at the carnival grounds Miss Emily Peckham was crowned queen of the carnival, with Perry Martin as king. Senator Blair Lee, the speaker of the day, felicitated the king and queen on the honor which had been awarded them, and presented them with the key of the town, which Mayor Weber had given him. In his speech Mr. Lee denied the charges that he was not a friend of labor and laid the blame for the threatened strike, not on the demand for higher wages, but on the necessity of better living conditions. He said that the difficulty in obtaining an eight-hour day from the roads lay in the fact that the roads had so lengthened the freight trains that they were unwieldy and necessitated a long working day.

Prizes were awarded to the paraders, first prize going to the Ladies of the Maccabees. In the commercial vehicle class the prize was awarded to the Geo. A. Harlow Garage. Mrs. Annie L. Beavers was given the prize for the best private automobile. Master Nelson A. Beavers was declared to have the most grotesque entry, and was given the prize in that class.

The carnival will continue for two weeks with all features
